A guide to qualifications

Whatever your starting point we have a qualification to suit you. From Level 2 Pre-Access and Level 3 Access courses designed to prepare you for university up to Level 6 BA and BSc top-up degrees and post graduate teaching qualifications.

Level 2

Pre-Access

Pre-Access courses are for those who want to progress into Further or Higher Education courses but do not have the necessary qualifications required to go straight into a Level 3 course. The Pre-Access courses are designed to develop students' knowledge and understanding of the chosen subject but also aim to assist in developing the skills necessary for successful completion of Access courses.

Level 3

Access to HE

Access courses are designed for those who wish to undertake a university level course but did not gain the qualifications needed for entry whilst at school. Each Access programme includes units in several subjects and when put together, all prepare students for the study of a particular subject at degree level. Access courses are designed to help you get back into education and the course lecturers will provide all of the guidance and support required to achieve these goals.

Level 4

Higher National Certificates (HNC)

Higher National Certificates are work related, vocational Higher Education qualifications. HNCs are equivalent to year one of an undergraduate degree but are designed to give you the skills required to put learnt knowledge into effective use in a particular job. HNCs usually take two years to complete if studied on a part time basis, or one year if studied on a full time basis. The qualifications are highly valued by employers in both the UK and overseas and may also count towards membership of professional bodies.

Level 5

Higher National Diplomas (HND)

Higher National Diplomas, like HNCs are work related, vocational Higher Education qualifications. Equivalent to a Foundation Degree, HNDs are designed to give students the skills needed for success in a particular field. Students can study a HND for two days a week, over two years. Highly valued by employers, HNDs can provide exemption from certain degree modules.

Foundation Degrees (FdA/FdSc)

Foundation Degrees are designed to equip you for a particular area of work, as well as providing general skills that are useful in any type of employment. Like other degrees, Foundation Degrees provide a university level qualification but are often designed with a particular area of work in mind; this contribution often comes from employers within the relevant sector. Typically, you'll get the chance to learn in the workplace as well as the classroom by way of a compulsory placement. Foundation Degrees offer a route into Higher Education for people of all ages and backgrounds.

Level 6

Honours Degrees BA/BSc {Top ups}

Honours Degrees combine some practical sessions alongside theory based learning. Most Honours Degrees require the completion of a dissertation or other large project in the final year. Students who have completed a HND or Foundation Degree may be eligible to 'top up' to an Honours Degree.

MATTHEW HARGREAVES | BA WORKING WITH CHILDREN & FAMILIES

“I chose Southport College University Centre, after completing my previous qualification via distance learning as I wanted to achieve a degree without finding myself in huge amounts of debt. The College is close to home and has all of the course specific facilities that are needed for success at a higher level.

A lot of the other students in my group completed their Foundation Degree here, so most have known each other for almost three years but I have not found this to be a problem, as they have all been very welcoming. The teaching staff on the programme are very passionate about their subject and they too have been very warm and welcoming. My advice to anyone considering the course is to make sure that this is something you really want to do, as it is a full degree programme so is just as demanding as going to a larger university but the group sessions with smaller class sizes really allow you to have confidence in your abilities, through regular feedback from peers and teaching staff.”

“If your future career plans involve computer science in any way, this course offers a fantastic next step. My time at Southport College University Centre has not only allowed me to study on a full honours degree programme but has provided inspiration for what I would like to do with my future.”

BSC (HONS)

JOSH MOORCROFT JONES | COMPUTING & IT

“I chose to attend Southport College University Centre because not only did it offer a local, familiar and friendly environment but the course content was perfectly suited to my interests and future career plans.

Undeniably, the best part of the course has been the consistent opportunity to learn something new. The course has provided an enjoyable challenge and a level of support that is far beyond what I would have expected from a University programme.

All of the staff, on the programme and beyond, have been friendly and eager to help, providing a comfortable and safe learning environment, with resources that are perfectly suited to the requirements of the course. If your future career plans involve computer science in any way, this course offers a fantastic next step. My time at Southport College University Centre has not only allowed me to study on a full honours degree programme but has provided inspiration for what I would like to do with my future.

On completion of the BSc I plan to study on a PGCE programme, so that I can become a secondary school teacher.”

There's always room out there for the hand-drawn image. I personally like the imperfection of hand drawing as opposed to the slick look of computer animation. But you can do good stuff either way. The Pixar movies are amazing in what they do, but there's plenty of independent animators who are doing really amazing things as well.”

CORIOLANUS | HND IN PERFORMING ARTS

Rome is in a mutinous mood. The citizens are protesting about their rulers' incompetence and the shortage of food.

A popular senator, Menenius Agrippa, has just managed to calm them when the arrogant and fiery young general, Caius Martius, arouses their emotions again by confronting them. He tells them that tribunes, including Sicinius Velutus and Junius Brutus, have been appointed to speak on their behalf.

Martius leads the Roman army against the Volscian forces, led by Tullus Aufidius, who are threatening Rome. Martius defeats the Volscians in their own city, Corioli, with great personal valour, and is given the title of 'Coriolanus'. When he returns to Rome the senate elect him to succeed Cominius as Consul. He accepts the honour but refuses to subject himself to the endorsement of the common people in the market place. He finally and very reluctantly agrees to it but although he achieves the people's approval, it is not a ringing endorsement.

Urged on by the tribunes, Sicinius and Brutus, they reverse their endorsement. Coriolanus shows his contempt for them by denying their right to corn. His mother, Volumnia, and some senators, do everything they can to smoothe matters between him and the people but they are unsuccessful. He is expelled from Rome.

He goes to the Volscian city of Antium in disguise and is welcomed by his former enemy, Aufidius. The Roman tribunes celebrate Coriolanus' departure until the news arrives that he has joined forces with Aufidius to challenge the city. All diplomatic attempts to stop him fail until his mother, his wife, Virgilia, and his young son, approach him. He is unable to resist their entreaties and agrees to make peace.

Aufidius, filled with a sense of betrayal, then kills Coriolanus.

“The course is a challenging programme that requires a lot of self discipline but I would not hesitate to recommend it to anyone.”

AMELIA HICKSON | HND PHOTOGRAPHY

"I definitely think Southport College University Centre offers the best photography course. Some of the other courses I looked at included too many other subjects whereas the main focus on this course is actually Photography. The fact that we can experiment with different processes – we have plenty of creative freedom within the units. The class sizes are small so we get good time with our lecturers. I'm doing a top-up course at University. I have my heart set on Sunderland or Hereford. I would like to work on blog projects when I finish University and also sell my own documentary style prints."

We are in the society of the teacher judge, the doctor judge, the educator judge, the 'social worker' judge; it is on them that the universal reign of the normative is based; and each individual, wherever he may find himself, subjects to it his body, his gestures, his behaviour, his aptitudes, his achievements.”

The course is quite broad and there's lots to learn. It's a comfortable environment, not at all intimidating and everyone is very welcoming and supportive. The smaller class sizes make for a better relationship with lecturers and colleagues. My advice is to definitely read up on your subject and use all the resources that are available. JOAN SHANNON | BA HEALTH & SOCIAL CARE

"Becoming a student at Southport College University Centre marked my return to education after a long period of absence. Naturally, I was a little apprehensive but any fears were soon alleviated by fantastic lecturers and peers, who have shared my journey with me.

The staff in the Health & Social Care department have been an absolute inspiration. Juggling degree level study with full-time work and home commitments is not easy but those moments where I felt like giving up were quickly overcome as the lecturers were always available to provide advice, empathy and support.

I have worked in health care services for many years but I feel the qualifications I have gained at Southport College University Centre will allow me to continue climbing the career ladder. My advice to anyone considering a degree here is to go for it, I have had a wonderful time here and will be very sad to leave."

“

Instead of worrying about teaching the curriculum or making sure that you've got a strict classroom environment, build your relationships first. Get your kids on board, connect with them, find out what it is that they're interested in. Build the relationship, build that trust. And then everything else can happen.”
